education, an associate's degree, or a first bachelor's degree, and low-income according to the U.S. Department of Labor's lower living standard. The selection process is organized by staff and carried out by volunteers and board members following JRF selection guidelines. Three full-time and one part-time staff manage the day-to-day work of the foundation. In addition, volunteers and college student interns assist with the work.

The value of a college education can be quantified by looking at the increased earning power it provides. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics and Census Bureau, the median salary for women, based on the first quarter of 2009, is: $20,176 for less than a high school education; $27,404 for a high school graduate; $32,604 with an Associate's Degree; and $46,020 with a Bachelor's Degree. JRF scholarships help women toward financial independence, benefiting themselves and their families. We extend our heartfelt gratitude to the generous individuals, family foundations, and businesses who help women succeed through education.
